Course Description

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Identify the most important authors of Arabic philosophy.
2. Analyze teachings and reflections on specific topics and selected texts from Arabic philosophy.
3. Analyze and compare Arabic and scholastic philosophical texts and the issues in them in the context of their cultures.
4. Evaluate the general value of Greek philosophy in the medium of another language, Arabic.
5. Reconstruct and evaluate important theses and arguments in thematic discussions.
6. Show students the influence of Arab and Jewish philosophy on medieval European philosophy and its importance for understanding the scientific culture of the West and European identity.

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

Dual-major studies

Philosophy

Analyze main problems of contemporary philosophical disciplines

Formulate different arguments, possible contradictions and construct counterexamples

Integrate different models of philosophical thinking specific to individual philosophical disciplines into a unique ability of philosophical and critical thinking

Explain the specifics of contemporary philosophical disciplines and their development

Encourage the development of professional and scientific excellence and integrity and determine the need for lifelong learning and professional development

Archivistics for historians

202954

Lecturer

doc. dr. sc.
Vlatko Smiljanić

Course Description

The aim of the course is to acquire theoretical and practical knowledge of archives and archival material in general in order to acquire the knowledge required for the research work of historians when searching for new historical sources. In this way the student will be introduced to the way archives function, how they are organized, learn how historical sources are made and their path from origin to the status of historical archives.

The aim of the course is also to provide the student with theoretical and practical knowledge on how to access the source he found in the archive, how to make his analysis (internal and external characteristics of the document, stamps and seals, letter, transcription, etc.) and how to present it in written scientific form.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Explain the types of archives, how they are organized, how they are created and what they serve
2. Reproduce a historical research plan for the work of searching for new historical sources within any archive
3. Classify archives catalogs and inventories
4. Reproduce internal and external analysis and transcription of historical sources, especially when it comes to manuscripts
5. Use archival material appropriately
6. Differentiate the analysis of documents of recent times from the analysis of medieval sources

Course Description

The goal of the course is to familiarize the student with deep learning techniques for understanding and creating natural language. The course consists of a recapitulation of logistic regression, artificial neural networks, recurrent neural networks, LSTM networks, autoencoders and transformers. The student will learn to implement all these architectures in HuggingFace, over selected data sets, as well as learn to work with the OpenAI functional interface.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Apply LSTM networks for Croatian language processing and text generation. Understand how supervised machine learning systems are used as unsupervised machine learning systems in processing sequential data (text, voice, recording)
2. Apply autoencoders for data preprocessing and transformation
3. Analyze transformers and their application to natural language processing and the creation of dialog systems, as well as to generate image descriptions.

Course Description

Goals

1. Education from bibliotherapy as an educational method
2. Acquire the skills of noticing the causal-consequent processes between the thinking, emotions and actions of characters and / or actants in the literary work
3. Recognizing the way of thinking of characters and / or actants in a literary work
4. Identifying the emotions of characters and / or actants motivated by thinking
5. Understanding and defining the behavior of characters and / or actants motivated by emotions.
6. Recognizing and selecting relevant information
7. Developing insights into the subject matter
8. Encourage discussion
9. Communicating new values and attitudes
10. Creating awareness of similar emotional patterns of characters in literature
11. Recognizing a realistic and alternative solution with regard to the issue.

The theory of applied bibliotherapy suggests that quality literature gives a unique contribution to the perception of emotional-emotional relations, especially when interpreted by an educated biblioterapist.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Describe the mindset of the characters
2. Describe ways in which thinking motivates the emotions of characters
3. Describe events that are motivated by the emotions of the characters
4. Argue and generalize the contribution of characters in fictional life presented in a literary work
5. Identify similar patterns of thought-emotion-action in the real world and life

Lecturer

doc. dr. sc.
Vanja Kopilaš

Course Description

Introducing students to the basic paradigm of cognitive psychology information processing and related approaches that empirically model human cognition and mind (including possible advantages and limitations). Targeted upgrading of minor number of cognitive topics, attained at the undergraduate psychology study (attention, working and long-term memory, intelligence and cognitive development), and systematically introducing cognitive structures and processes that are not learned at undergraduate level (knowledge structures, mental representations, language, problem solving, decision making, inductive and deductive reasoning, artificial intelligence, expertise and consciousness). Generating at students an adoption of systematic representation of above mentioned cognitive psychology topics, by emphasizing: (1) construct and neural definition; (2) empirical findings for theoretical models construction, (3) optimal theoretical models, (4) arguments for the models validation, (5) possible measurement methods, and (6) the application in non-research situations. Preparing students for cognitive psychology research through the construction, presentation and discussion of seminar works on contemporary applied cognitive psychology topics, and thereby enable them for critical study of scientific and professional literature and train the skills of making professional/scientific presentation and of argumentative discussion. Making students sensible for specific aspects of cognitive psychology discipline by visiting laboratories for research and application of cognitive issues and giving them possibility of later scientific and professional engagement.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Describe and critically judge the basic paradigm of cognitive psychology and its basic approaches and methods
2. Distinguish and organize neural basis of cognitive processes and structures
3. Explain specific aspects and components of essential cognitive processes and structures
4. Compare basic features of specific cognitive processes and structures and by using this comparison to successfully distinguish them
5. Classify and combine empirical findings for specific theoretical model of the observed cognitive structure/process, and by using this evaluate the model

Grading

Class attendance - up to 12% of the course grade; group presentation (with discussion) - up to 12% of the course grade; a short quiz exam every second lecture - up to 12% of the course; two partial written exams (tests) - up to 40% of the course grade; oral exam - up to 24% of the course grade; extra points - up to 4% of the course grade.

6. Arrange occurrence of the same cognitive constructs and structures in different cognitive processes and thereby construct logical and integrated presentation of mind in the frames of information processing paradigm
7. Identify the importance of cognitive psychology in other fields of psychology and related disciplines
8. Analyze actual research controversies in cognitive psychology and, doing this, prepare and present seminar work
9. Argue on controversial, but also conventional phenomena of cognitive psychology
10. Evaluate scientific research and proofs in the domain of cognitive phenomena

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

Psychology

Integrate the knowledge of the fundamental psychological processes and characteristics (perception, memory, learning, motivation, emotions, personality, and social behaviour

Critically evaluate professional and scientific literature from psychology and related disciplines and create new scientific knowledge

General Competencies

Appraise fundamental theoretical knowledge of psychology and its relationship with different branches of applied psychology.

Establish links between the theoretical models about the specific components of human cognition (attention, memory, language, problem solving, judgment and decision-making, cognitive development, consciousness) and the theoretical psychology and/or psychological practice.

Identify the neural and other biological mechanisms of specific psychological processes and behaviours, their developmental changes, protective and risk factors, and select the appropriate methods for their testing and measuring.

Assess personal skills of verbal and written professional communication and create complex communication and interdisciplinary cooperation in various professional environments.

Support collaboration in interdisciplinary team work and establish constructive professional relationships with experts from associated disciplines.

Croatian emigrant media

214020

Course Description

The aim of the course is to get acquainted with the history of the development of Croatian media in different environments in the diaspora, to get acquainted with the circumstances in which they arose, the ways in which they developed or extinguished, the difficulties they encountered, etc. Special attention will be paid to specific circumstances in certain emigrant communities, also in Croatian autochthonous communities in the diaspora, because they are very different from each other.

To a large extent, it will be considered to what extent new technologies and media have influenced the development of emigrant media as a whole, but also the shutdown of individual publications. The role of the Croatian language in the development of the Croatian media in the diaspora from the 19th century to the present day will also be discussed, as well as the extent to which it is suppressed by the language of the majority community with new generations.

Students will independently research, discover and discuss new electronic media and new forms of media activity. They will consider the role of the media in the social life of emigrant and minority communities (cultural events and various other meetings, sports activities, schooling and education system, entrepreneurship, religious life, cooperation with the homeland, etc.).

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Explain why newspapers are an important medium for communities in the diaspora and how newspapers and public media activities can influence the social, economic and political inclusion of emigrants in the development concept of Croatia.
2. Reproduce the meaning of different genres within the press and public activities in the diaspora and their role in preserving the Croatian emigrant identity.
3. Recognize the importance of Croatian radio and television programs in the diaspora.
4. Recognize and accept as a new wealth the diversity of the media, portals, etc. of the Croatian emigrants and minority communities.
5. Analyze the advantages and disadvantages of the classical way of reporting and new technologies and media.
6. Reproduce basic cognitive, critical and analytical competencies related to classifications, typification, analysis, prediction and evaluation of the content of individual media and other patterns of public action in the diaspora.
7. Compare the basic differences between the press and other forms of public action on individual continents, as an additional emigrant wealth.
8. Recognize the basic differences between the press and other forms of public action in minority communities compared to those of emigrants.

Course Description

Students will gain insight into the essential features and basic problems of the Croat-Hungarian networks in the “long” 19th century (1790-1918) from the point of view of pluralism of mutual relations and parallelism of mutual conditions in key emergent dimensions that in the epoch of dynamic history of modernization and national-integration processes significantly influenced the historical fate of Croats, Hungarians and other peoples of the Lands of the Hungarian Crown in Central European environment. Croats and Hungarians lived for 816 years (1102-1918) in the same state formation, both within the Hungarian-Croatian kingdom and within the Habsburg Monarchy and Austria-Hungary, sharing during that very long period all the benefits and tribulations of a common history. Particularly great changes in this regard are noticeable, ranging from the transformation of the personal into a real union at the end of the 18th century until the end of World War I and the breaking of historical ties in changed geopolitical circumstances, since it was at that time that abounded with temptations that most influenced the recognizable convergence and divergence on both sides of the Drava River. Croats and Hungarians, recognized in different ways to one another, even brothers in arms under conditions of common defence against the Ottoman spread in the Early Modern Period, began to diverge from the end of the 18th century, largely because of conflicting conceptions of their own emancipation in the conditions of the creation of modern society and the shaping of modern nations. They even made war with each other in 1848/1849, when the Croatian viceroy Jelacic led an army against the Hungarian government that did not respect the centuries-old Croatian peculiarity, and various misunderstandings came to light, despite the Croat-Hungarian Compromise of 1868, decades later. Having stabilized during the 20th century in patterns of neighbourly complementarity, relations between Croats and Hungarians today are friendly, and the former confrontations are a distant past. This is almost paradigmatic example of the stratification and variability in relations between two nations, depending on the continuities and changes in each period and appropriate historical context.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Compare the Age of Reform in Hungary and the Croatian National Revival
2. Evaluate the Croatian-Hungarian War of 1848/1849. in the context of the Habsburg Monarchy
3. Analyze the Croatian-Hungarian Compromise in a comparative perspective
4. Define the autocratic face and developmental reverse of Khuen's rule at the end of XIX. century
5. Show basic knowledge of regional aspects and minority communities

Croatian Latinists in the Literary Republic

200539

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Maja Matasović

Course Description

This course enables students to detect historical and social parallels between the context of the works of Croatian latinists and an international base of ideas, themes and motives throughout the Renaissance and the Early Modern Ages. This pool of ideas is closely connected to the term of Res publica litteraria and the Latin language as lingua franca of Europe's culture and science. The students will learn of the reception of Croatian latinists' works outside of Croatian lands, as well as of their integration into contemporary European trends. This way the students - future teachers - will be able to appreciate and emphasise the importance of Latin in European and Croatian culture and identity.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Translate texts from all periods of Croatian Latinity and in every functional style
2. Analyse the text on a linguistical level and prepare it for educational purposes
3. Analyse the text on a literary-stylistic level and prepare it for educational purposes
4. Connect the text with classical and medieval tradition
5. Synthetise the knowledge of a latinistic work in the form of an essay
6. Contextualise a certain work according to the contemporary socio-political contexts and the author's biography
7. Teach about the latinistic works through a historical, literary or cultural aspect
8. Explain the manner of influence on the Croatian Latinists through the Res publica litteraria

Croatian state, public and social institutions

211194

Course Description

The student will gain insight into Croatian state, public and social institutions, learn about their role and especially their mutual relations, hierarchy and protocol issues related to them. Moreover, students learn about the powers and actions of these institutions through which they realize their specific legal-political and social function. In addition to the theoretical explanations, students will have the opportunity to visit relevant institutions that represent the levers of government in the course, in order to be able to see directly and in practice, on a larger scale and at an operational level, the relationship between them, how they function and, finally, what functions they perform. The relationship is analyzed and explained to the student in a particular way of Croatian state and public institutions to the institutions of the European Union, taking into account their supranational character.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Recognize and define the importance of state, political and social institutions as factors that build the Croatian state and nation.
2. Analyze the state, political and social institutions as a kind of identity-forming factors of the Croatian state.
3. Explain the importance of state, political, and social institutions as a means of preserving national identity and statehood.
4. Develop a conversation about the system of state, political and social institutions in the Republic of Croatia.
5. Recognize the basic characteristics, functions and powers of Croatian state and political institutions
6. Evaluate the relationship between the various levers of government, which find their legal-political expression in the relationship between institutions
7. Analyze the system of state administration and regional and local self-government.

Grading

Attendance and discussion in class, conducted research, seminar paper and oral exam. In addition to the classic methods of monitoring through lectures, seminar papers, exams, interviews, tests and the like, independent research papers are especially valued and through mentoring they are raised to the level of possible student performance at scientific and professional gatherings or publication in appropriate journals. This is a special motive for students in developing their independence and in confirming their cognitive power. In this way, students can already publish during their studies and create assumptions for future work and employment in research teams.

7. Define the status of woman in diaspora in case studies

Democratic Changes in the Republic of Croatia

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Vlatka Vukelić

doc. dr. sc.
Vladimir
Šumanović

Course Description

The development of democratic change as a precondition and basis for the emergence of the modern Republic of Croatia is an important topic for understanding contemporary Croatian society. This period spans more than ten years during which Croatia has moved beyond the administrative unit within socialist Yugoslavia, which has recognized states independently and internationally. Due to the importance of these topics, it is necessary to define a logical connection between the actors, both domestically and internationally, who influenced their independent Croatia, as well as its structure as a parliamentary democratic state. For this reason, this course aims to fill the historiographic void that is now insufficient for them on this important topic, and the students of the graduate study of history provided basic information through which they understood the character of the society in which they live.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Describe the basic problem of interpretation of historical development
2. Describe and discuss about the context of historical events on micro and macro level
3. Describe, connect and be able to conclude things about certain events.
4. Describe and include interdisciplinary way of thinking about certain historical theme
5. Analyze certain conclusions about historical themes and events

Course Description

- introduce students to the basic analytical and substantive concept of demographic revitalization
- explain to students the basic principles and principles of demographic revitalization
- explain to the students the complexity of the revitalization basis in accordance with the scope of the revitalization and the systems in which it is implemented
- explain to students the specifics of individual revitalization patterns and possible limitations
- train students to apply standard analytical and special methods and techniques in considering revitalization
- encourage students to apply previous interdisciplinary knowledge in terms of defining spatial issues
- train students to understand, explain and predict future demographic trends and conditions
- develop students' awareness of the importance of the population as a fundamental factor in guiding overall development

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Explain the basic terminologies - substantive and analytical understanding of revitalization and revitalization patterns
2. Explain the basic approach, principles and principles of demographic revitalization
3. Distinguish basic quantitative and qualitative projection (demographic) patterns
4. Define the connections and relations of the population towards other systems and the role of the population in functional planning and organization of space

Course Description

The aim of the course is to acquaint students with basic knowledge about the etiology of various disorders in childhood and adolescence with special emphasis on their impact on educational process.

Special emphasis is placed on various factors and their interaction in interpreting the etiology of the disorder, as well as on risk and protective factors in the development of the disorder. Students will be introduced to the basic guidelines in working with children and adolescents within the observed disorder.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Distinguish the fundamental principles of deviation from normal development.
2. Define the causes of individual deviations from the average developmental pathway and explain the interaction of different factors in explaining the etiology of developmental disorders
3. Use knowledge of developmental psychopathology
4. Integrate facts of general psychopathological developmental processes into individual cases in practice

Dario
Vučenović

Course Description

Course content enables students to interpret human behavior and development through a multidimensional approach. Students will be introduced to a biochemical approach to the study of the impact of physical, social and psychological environments on the development of children and young people and to differentiate the environmental impacts from the individual characteristics of the individual to interact in everyday life. Through critical analysis of various development theories and contemporary research, students will gain insight into the outcomes of environmental factors at different levels of the ecological model of development and to compare the behavior of children and young people with regard to the social and cultural context. Students will distinguish between the risk of microsystems, mesosystems, exosystems and macrosystems on parenting behavior and the development of children and young people. Students will analyze the importance of different ecological systems on the behavior of children and young people, the consequences of transition and one system to the other, and the impact of the quality of interconnection between systems, especially in the social context. Students will discuss seminar work and workshops independently, but also in groups, to discuss the relation of the subjects with the basis of developmental, social and clinical psychology, review their own attitudes and gain the experience of presenting scientific research in a group context. Also, students will be constantly encouraged to reflect on the possibilities of developing and implementing preventive and intervention programs and strategies for children and young people at all levels of the ecological model.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Explain the main concepts and propositions of the biochemical theory of human development
2. Define and differentiate the paradigm of research in developmental psychology with regard to whether they can make conclusions about the impact of the interaction between the characteristics of a person and different levels of environmental context on individual development
3. Interpret the Macro and Exposure Implications of the System to Functioning and Possibilities of Development of Poor and Socially Excluded Families, Children and Youth, as well as other vulnerable and marginalized social groups

Course Description

The aim of the course is to improve the students' competence in the field of research methodologies and to train students for the effective application of acquired skills and knowledge in professional work. Through successful fulfillment of obligations, the students will improve their competence in the selection and application of research methods and design, will improve their skill of independent planning, organizing and carrying out research, and scientific reporting. An important aim of the course is to improve the competencies of analytical and critical thinking of students.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Explain the research process and the manner of planning, organizing and conducting a research project;
2. Analyze and evaluate the advantages and disadvantages of individual approaches to conducting a research project;
3. Create and shape the overall project plan in which they will be able to point out and evaluate key elements, threats and challenges;
4. Apply the acquired knowledge to planning, organizing and carrying out a research project;
5. Demonstrate results and outcomes of the conducted research project;
6. Apply the acquired knowledge and publicly present and critically evaluate the scope, advantages and disadvantages of the conducted research projects.

Grading

The final student grade is determined in the exam, which can be written, oral or a combination of written and oral. During the course, individual students' activities are granted points as follows: Students who collect points from just one activity and/or the number of obtained points does not exceed 25 are considered to have not met the minimum requirement for the course and are not eligible to receive signatures. The success of all students who during the semester obtain less than 50 points will without exception be determined through knowledge and competence assessment in exams during planned exam terms. The students who obtain 50 or more points are obliged to attend the exam during the exam terms in which their acquired point will be converted to initial grades according to the following procedure: 50,0 to 59,9 points - sufficient (2); 60,0 to 74,9 points - good (3); 75 to 84,9 points - very good (4); 85 to 100 points - excellent (5). In addition to adding points, the teacher has the right to organize for every student during the exam terms

Assess one's own oral and written professional communication skills and create complex communications and interdisciplinary cooperation in different professional environments

Assess the compliance of psychological practice with prescribed ethical principles of psychological activity in various areas of theoretical and applied psychology

Evaluate theoretical concepts and scientific knowledge in the creation of interventions and programs that will improve the living conditions and development of individuals, families, organizations and communities

Value the importance of lifelong professional development

additional knowledge and competence assessments in order to determine the student's final grade.

Attendance - 5 points;
Solving practical research problem tasks - 5 x 5 = 25 points; Writing a clear theoretical paper with a research method elaboration - 25 points;
Preliminary exam (written assessment of the students' achievements) - 45 points.

General Competencies

Evaluate different theories, paradigms and methodological approaches in psychology in the planning of assessments and interventions with individuals, groups and organizations.

Design fundamental and/or applied psychological research and construct and metrically evaluate psychological instruments.

Evaluate multivariate statistical procedures with regard to their limits and to satisfying the theoretical assumptions in concrete situations of application.

3. Three centuries of didactic thought. Two to three lessons are dedicated to acquainting students with the reasons behind the appearance of didactics as a science and practice and introducing fifteen most representative theoreticians and their ideas, used in contemporary didactics when reflecting on didactic theory or organizing didactic practice (see 2.4.).
4. Didactic etymology from the earliest times until today. Things in common: teaching activity, persons who teach, necessary qualifications for teaching, main contents that are taught, teaching media used, teaching environment, learning as the student's main activity.
5. Contemporary understanding of didactics (theory of teaching and learning, theory of school teaching, theory of educational contents, theory of learning processes management, theory of applying psychological knowledge in teaching and learning).
6. The basic concepts of didactics (teaching-tuition, learning, upbringing, education, school, dialectic interaction).
7. Didactic forms (didactic triangle, didactic quadrangle, didactic polygon).
8. Teaching forms (teaching oriented towards obtaining new knowledge, skills, educational attitudes, and open teaching structure).
9. Contemporary teaching principles (differentiating/individualizing, motivating, visualizing/realism, activation/self-engagement, structuring teaching contents, multiform perspectives, goal-orientedness, ensuring success).
10. Routine teaching planning (individual concept of the teacher, using professional literature, knowing the course/subject curriculum, a big number of textbooks, intellectual dialogue with colleagues, attending seminars, whence the teaching planning procedure can start, turning programme objectives into teaching objectives).
11. Time and shape of the working group (the role of place in teaching, the student's sitting place in the classroom – students oriented towards the teacher or working in groups, the U organization, individual work, students facing each other (one group versus the other), students in the circle, direct discussion).
12. Self-testing of the teacher (sufficient familiarity with the course and programme curriculum, precise formulation of the teaching unit objective, using sources and other materials, knowing the competences and experience of the students, envisaging various activities, personal conduct quality, equal activation of all students, the issue of attention, interest, and motivation, feedback information, special needs of students).
13. Realization of teaching (dialectic interaction, teaching objectives must become the student's objectives, personal activity of the teacher, flexible reactions, managing student attention, routine use of social forms of work, the rules of teacher behaviour, directions in cases of class obstruction).
14. Homework (evaluating homework, the role of homework, the types of homework, the objectives of homework, differentiating according to interests, competences, inclination, learning tools, environment, timing, and the ways of assigning homework)
15. Three types of teachers (authoritative, indolent, democratic - with the view of the following criteria: space, objective choice, activities, relationships, participation, evaluation).

Course Description

Diploma thesis is a complete, comprehensive and highly independent obligation the fulfillment of which marks the students' completion of their studies and in which the students must demonstrate their ability to analyze the posed problem or subject from the theoretical, practical and research perspective in the field or branch of science in which their studies are founded. The aim of this course is to allow the students to demonstrate their knowledge of the subject, the ability of independent research, use of literature and the application of scientific and professional methodology.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Collect, investigate and critically read scientific literature;
2. Choose a thesis topic;
3. Write the thesis syllabus;
4. Plan the course of scientific research within a well-defined frame;
5. Define research problems, hypotheses and methods which will be used in order to reach relevant results;
6. Write a thesis in the extent of approximately 9000-10000 words (50 to 60 standard pages of text).

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

History

Integrate critical models of thinking belonging to historical sciences into the unique ability of historical thinking

Use methods of explanation and interpretation of historical

Critically judge various descriptive and normative beliefs and attitudes

Support the further development of the historical profession based on the principles of scientific rationality, international recognition, scientific excellence and integrity

Present complex scientific and non-scientific content in written and oral form

Apply traditional historical terminology and nomenclature

Prepare and present written and oral presentations of complex academic and non-academic content

Conduct scientific research in the field of historical sciences and write historical papers in a clear and organized manner

General Competencies

Apply, classify and distinguish between professional and scientific terminology in the area of research;

Identify, evaluate and use a variety of scientific-research methods in the field of social sciences or humanities, which are applied in the area of research;

Independently conduct scientific research in the area of research with the help of modern scientific-research methods and write scientific papers in a clear and organized manner;

Think in an interdisciplinary manner and respect various scientific methodologies and perspectives on specific issues and problems in the researched field of social sciences or humanities.

Write a thesis in the Croatian or one of the world's languages in accordance with the scientific and ethical postulates, and defend it before a three-member committee.

Grading

Attendance and discussion in class, preparation and defense of the project and oral exam. In addition to the classic methods of monitoring through lectures, seminar papers, exams, interviews, tests and the like, independent research papers are especially valued and through mentoring they are raised to the level of the student's possible performance at scientific and professional gatherings or publication in appropriate journals. It is a special motive for students in developing independence and in confirming their cognitive power. In this way, students can already during their studies publish and create assumptions for future work and employment in research teams.

6. Describe the differences between institutes that regulate diplomatic affairs and those that regulate consular affairs
7. Analyze the international legal norms that regulate diplomatic and consular affairs with regard to the extensive relations of the Republic of Croatia with other countries, its emigration and membership in international organizations

Grading

The final grade will include regular work on teaching, writing homework and other independent assignments, and a written and oral exam. Written exam can be replaced by positive placement of two colloquia during the semester.

Course Description

The basic objective of the course is learning the basics of the Ancient Greek language (alphabet, correctly reading, writing and accenting of words in the Ancient Greek language, the basics of phonology and morphology). The goal is that students can observe the basic characteristics of the Ancient Greek text and gain competence for independent translation of simple sentences and short texts from Ancient Greek to Croatian language.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Analyze Ancient Greek nominal and verbal forms and describe their rules of flexion
2. Differentiate simple syntactic phenomena and compare them with those of the Latin language
3. Apply knowledge to read (transcribe and transliterate) the Greek alphabet
4. Apply accentual rules and write Ancient Greek on a computer using the Antioch program
5. Use reference aids (encyclopedias, dictionaries, grammar books, digital databases) for Ancient Greek

Event Management & Planning.

213965

Lecturer

Ivana Jeleč,
pred.

Course Description

Within the course students will be introduced to the theoretical and practical aspects of event management.

Starting from different types of events and going through a complex process of creating events, students will be introduced to the difference between event management and its promotion by gaining public opinion (event marketing), while practical examples from practice will introduce students to the course of event planning and setting the event, protocol activities, but also other factors necessary for the successful realisation of the event - human and financial resources, legislation and restrictions, and communication activities that include the synergy of public relations and marketing.

The course includes a final assignment / project where students will propose the concept of the event and create a communication plan that combines marketing and public relations activities necessary for effective communication of the event.

The final assignment serves as the basis of the final grade and periodical tasks are also taken into consideration for this purpose.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Define key concepts of event management.
2. Classify and interpret different types of the events.
3. Demonstrate process of event planning.
4. Demonstrate the role of all factors crucial for the successful implementation of the event.

Grading

Attendance and discussion in the field, colloquium, written exam and seminar work. In addition to the classic methods of monitoring through lectures in the field, colloquia, seminar papers, exams, interviews, tests and the like, independent research papers are especially valued and through mentoring they are raised to the level of possible student performance at scientific and professional meetings or publication in appropriate journals. This is a special motive for students in developing their independence and in confirming their cognitive power. In this way, students can already publish and create assumptions for future work and employment in research teams.

Course Description

The objectives of the course are:

1. Acquaint students directly in the field with organizations of the Croatian emigration, Croatian diplomatic and consular missions and other forms of organization
2. Develop students' awareness of the need to get to know Croatian Catholic missions, embassies, consular offices, Croatian emigrant societies and Croatian families directly.
3. Train students to distinguish between the meaning of indirect and direct research
4. To acquaint students with the meaning of emigration in spatial processes and relationships through direct field observations and a stay in a family expatriate environment, a working stay in Croatian representative offices and other similar institutions
5. Train students in the field of immediate discovery, recognition and definition of immigrant terms, categories and legality
6. Train students for independent scientific and research work in emigration areas and emigration institutions, societies, communities and the like
7. Train students to apply standard and special methods and techniques in field research on emigration
8. To explain to students the specifics of branch field methodologies and ways of recognizing spatial reflections of emigration
9. To acquaint students with the development of certain Croatian emigrant areas using concrete examples and stays in Croatian Catholic missions
10. Develop in students the application of field methods of emigration research, from surveying to interviewing
11. To explain the conditions of emigration and regional development to students living abroad

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Understanding spatial logic in fieldwork with the application of scientific technology

Course Description

To describe and give students the overview of key concepts, models and theories in forensic psychology. To explain and to compare different models and theoretical approaches in explanation of specific forensic phenomena, and to critically evaluate them. To relate theoretical frameworks to research findings and practical work. To foster application of gained knowledge in scientific and practical work.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Arrange concepts into models and theoretical frameworks in the field of forensic psychology
2. Evaluate contribution of psychology, law, policing, and psychiatry concepts to the forensic psychology field
3. Evaluate concepts, definitions, models and theories in the field of forensic psychology
4. Relate theories and models in forensic psychology and to relate them to the every-day experiences and psychological practices
5. Evaluate usefulness and applicability of different theoretical models in explanation of different types of antisocial behaviour
6. Prepare research in the field of forensic psychology

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

Psychology

General Competencies

Establish links between the theoretical models about the specific components of human cognition (attention, memory, language, problem solving, judgment and decision-making, cognitive development, consciousness) and the theoretical psychology and/or psychological practice.

Evaluate the impact of social context and social changes on the human development and behaviour of individuals, groups and systems.

Analyze scientific literature in psychology and related disciplines, and produce new scientific knowledge.

Course Description

The goal of the course is to train students for independent scientific and research work, to train students to apply theoretical and practical knowledge acquired during studies, to train students for the correct application of scientific methods and techniques in research, to develop the student's ability systematization and critical content analysis.

The course is enrolled by a student who chooses a graduate thesis at the Department of Demography and Croatian Emigration. If he chooses to defend his graduation thesis on another two-subject combination of studies, then he enrolls in the course Demographic Studies.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Apply theoretical and practical knowledge acquired during studies
2. Choose and apply appropriate scientific methods
3. Select and use appropriate literature
4. Discuss opinion and attitudes
5. Analyze and interpret data
6. Assess the appropriateness of the conclusions from the presented data
7. Describe the results of the research

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

Course Description

The aim of the course is to show in numerous examples, through a series of analytical insights and synthetic views, how Croatian culture is shaped by a series of very intense contacts with the nearest neighboring cultures, but also with those more important geographically very distant cultures. This relationship will be studied here synchronically as well as diachronically, showing the long-lasting cultural patterns that came to Croatian culture from the ancient and even earlier periods. The purpose of this study is to examine the key features of Croatian identity that are permeated with foreign elements and on which these foreign elements are assimilated and taken over or directed by other environments to become cultural layers in them.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Analyze insights into the complexity of Croatian cultural identity
2. Analyze and identify related issues and interpret them from the standpoint of intertextuality and the comparative methodology that are going to be adopted
3. Define knowledge about the development of Croatian culture and about its interpreters and their misconceptions
4. Analyze complex questions about Croatian identity

Historiography Practicum

202867

Course Description

The objective of the course is to develop the skills of academic writing of historiographic text that are useful in writing any work. In doing so, a template will be used whereby high-quality academic text starts from critical reading, relation to the texts of other historians, and the identification of key author's theses. This approach shapes one's own image of read texts on a particular topic and shapes one's ideas. Only then does one think of ways in which these ideas could be organized and presented in the form of written work, taking into account a number of things (topic, purpose and scope of work, audience, place of publication...). These skills will be developed through joint discussions and individual consultations on the results of particular exercises. The second objective of the course is to distinguish and adopt acceptable from unacceptable forms of academic writing (academic standards, plagiarism, the meaning of categories of papers, ethical standards ...).

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Explain acceptable and unacceptable forms of academic writing
2. Identify the main points and the way of their argumentation in the texts of individual authors
3. Explain the theories of other authors
4. Explain and summarize your own ideas

History of Christianity in Croatia

270166

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Davor Piskač

Course Description

Since Christianity is one of the essential elements of Croatian identity and that Europe, indeed, rose from Christian roots, the main objective of the course is to familiarize the students with the historical processes and events related to the Church (in the broadest sense of the word), and which shaped and strengthened the Croatian identity. The issue in question is not the identification of the religious with the national, but rather their mutual understanding and interpretation. Through the lectures, which are organized around selected questions and supplemented with individual work, the students will become capable of understanding the issues and problems of the Croatian religious history and, ultimately, of working in the interdisciplinary field of Croatology more fruitfully.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Describe the course of the history of Christianity among the Croats.
2. Determine the key events and protagonists of the Croatian history.
3. Explain historical events in the causal process.
4. Connect the events from the Croatian religious history with the events at the European and historical scene.
5. Connect the events from the Croatian religious history with the events at the world's historical scene.
6. Present the hierarchy of historical events.
7. Discern their relevance of the historical events for the present moment.
8. Present Christianity as a component of the Croatian identity.

Course Description

The main goal of this class is to introduce the history of Croatian cinema to students, with special emphasis on the different approaches to the study of film history and the position of the Croatian cinema within the global context, especially in terms of industry and ideology. Considering this goal we are going to establish an overview of the aesthetic and social history of the national cinema, with insight into the most significant directors' and authors' oeuvres, genres and stylistic movements. We are going to position Croatian film in its Central European and Mediterranean context, viewed in the lens of popular and national culture, as well as through the prism of leading art medium of the 20th century. Although we are going to focus predominantly on feature length fiction film, separate lectures will be dedicated to documentaries, Zagreb school of animation, as well as to leading experimental cinema authors. For students without prior film studies experiences, overview of basic terminology will be offered, as well as guidelines for critical approach to contemporary Croatian film production.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Apply the history of art in the history of cinema
2. Analyze and understand the aesthetics and the issues of aesthetic changes (on the example of film)
3. Apply the knowledge of critical theory and the theory and history of literature (especially from narratology and the study of popular culture) in the area of film
4. Apply the interpretation and textual analysis (in the area of film analysis)
5. Recognize the fundamental film narrative styles (classical and modernist)
6. Recognize the fundamental stylistic determinants of a film, along with the ability to analyze and interpret the film at the fundamental level of stylistic interpretation

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

History of private life --Croatia in the "long 19th century"

270165

Lecturer

doc. dr. sc.
Kristina Milković

Course Description

The history of private life has an important place in contemporary historiography, but due to the extensiveness of the material, it is not possible to include it in course that provide overviews of individual epochs. This elective course is designed as a complement to the knowledge gained about the history of the 19th century, which was also a time of numerous and important changes and transitions from late feudal society to modern civil society, the disappearance of numerous collective identities and the emergence of new ones, as well as the separation of public and private spheres of life. In this elective course, an attempt will be made to analyze how these epochal changes, which the students were already familiar with at the undergraduate level of studies, were reflected in the private lives of individuals and individual identities.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Analyze selected sources and literature
2. Summarize the causes of changes in private life in the 19th century
3. Analyze the concept of identity
4. Describe the fundamental connections between political and socioeconomic changes on the one hand and changes in the field of private life on the other

Introduction to Sociolinguistics

133474

Lecturer

Lucia Miškulin
Saletović,
v. pred. dr. sc.

Course Description

The course provides an introduction to sociolinguistics, i.e. to the study of why we speak the way we do, and the social factors that influence our linguistic decisions. Key issues of the complex interaction between language and society are explored, including register, genres, styles, code-switching, diglossia, bilingualism, language and power, language and identity, communication across cultures, language change, language policy and planning, all of which are unified by the common denominator called language variability and diversity. Considerable attention is devoted to the ways in which spoken and written language may be interpreted depending on the context and expectations of the participants.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Describe diverse factors of linguistic micro-choices (social stratification, gender and age), as well as of macro-choices (boundaries, background, functional restrictions)
2. Discuss a wide range of factors relevant to language issues in cross-cultural and intercultural communication
3. Illustrate various aspects of language change over time and explain possible reasons
4. Explain the interplay between both language and power, and language and identity
5. Examine language policies in a particular country or area (of students choice), including goals, measures, implementation, monitoring and actual or probable outcomes
6. Analyze the sociolinguistic situation in a particular country or area (of students choice) by applying the key sociolinguistic concepts

Grading

It is assessed the participation in class, activities during the class, the quality of the seminar paper.

Course Description

The course is planned in two ways: on the one hand, intrinsically, on the study of the literary work of Ivana Brlić-Mažuranić, in the context of early 20th century Croatian literature and in the context of the formation of canons and non children's and children's literature. On the other hand, the course focuses extrinsically on the study of the Ivana Brlić-Mažuranić phenomenon in her time and today. The course is literary-historical and cultural, and in this sense the aims of the course are seen in the questioning and recontextualization of the work of Ivana Brlić-Mažuranić in literary-historical and canonical sense.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Define and conduct academic research on archival or other historical material

Grading

Students are expected to write and present an essay on a selected topic, and the level of information acquired is tested through an oral exam.

Course Description

This course enables students to understand the role of Latin language in the creation of European civilisation, primarily through its role in educational and school system. The focus is set on Early modern age, and on the various stances towards language in different educational systems in different periods and lands. Documents such as Ratio studiorum and Ratio educationis are discussed, as well as the role of Catholic Church in the transference of knowledge. Special attention will be given to the situation in Croatian lands. This way the students - future teachers - will be able to appreciate and emphasise the importance of Latin in Croatian culture and identity.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Translate texts from all periods of Croatian Latinity and in every functional style
2. Analyse the text on a linguistical level and prepare it for educational purposes
3. Analyse the text on a literary-stylistic level and prepare it for educational purposes
4. Connect the text with classical and medieval tradition
5. Synthetise the knowledge of a latinistic work in the form of an essay
6. Contextualise a certain work according to the contemporary socio-political contexts and the author's biography
7. Teach about the latinistic works through a historical, literary or cultural aspect
8. Critically analyse the text important for the history of education

Lexicology and Lexicography of the Croatian Language

147174

Lecturer

prof. dr. sc.
Mario Grčević

Course Description

The main objective of this course is to give the students a thorough description of general and Croatian lexis in one place and to process the majority of issues related to the notion of lexical units. By confronting different theories, students will be encouraged to independently consider universals through semantic relations between lexical units: which is one, and which is two (relation between polysemy and homonymy); what is the same and what is different (relation between synonymy and paronymy); what is a possibility, and what is realization (relationship between paradigmatic and syntagmatic). In addition to gaining theoretical knowledge and be given a historical overview of the development of the Croatian lexis, the students will, through interactive classes, enrich their vocabulary, be able to observe lexical errors in public communication, properly use lexical units and thereby develop the ability of naming concepts in Croatian words. During the semester, the students will be able to apply the knowledge acquired through classes and constant reading of lexicological works and deal with smaller assignments, and check what they have learned through lexicographic examples.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Apply and master the lexicological and lexicographic terminology
2. Distinguish between linguistic units
3. Distinguish linguistic levels and understand the concept of a lexical unit
4. Identify and analyze interlexeme and intralexeme semantic relations
5. Analyze and observe universal relations and discuss abstract concepts
6. Apply theoretical knowledge on specific examples
7. Discover the world of science by cognition of language universals.

Grading

70% attendance is a must. Student papers (essays) are graded and a final grade is given accordingly.

General Competencies

In the context of literary science and linguistics, Stylistics is important because it teaches students to research and recognize means of artistic expression.

Students study the language expression and function of literary texts and recognize rules and principles.

As part of the teaching process in language and literature classes in elementary and secondary schools, stylistics teaches students to write and speak well.

After completing the course of Stylistics, students will be able to identify functional styles in literature and develop the ability to choose appropriate texts for specific needs during the process of teaching in elementary and secondary schools.

Understanding of the functional styles contributes to more beautiful and more accurate expression, development of cognitive skills and aesthetic awareness.

Lecturer

doc. dr. sc.
Tomislav
Janović

Course Description

Mass communication has given character to human society since its beginning, and its forms have evolved in parallel with social and technological development and had impact on the character of political relations. The information society is characterized by a pronounced influence of the media on social life, and the emergence of new media is again changing the forms of communication and strongly influences the methods of politics.

The aim of the course is to enable students to gain insight into the latest developments in the political aspects of mass communication, and the role of communication in the political process. The course will contain an introduction to the structure of the political process, the history of political ideas and public phenomenon as a framework for communication and legitimacy based on political decisions. The course should enable students to acquire knowledge and adoption of appropriate methods of research.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Ivan Burić

Course Description

At the beginning of graduate studies, the task of this course is to show the different possibilities and methods of scientific research of media to facilitate the students to decide what subject to choose for their research as well as subject of the MA thesis. As preparation for independent and responsible scientific research in the field of media research, the course will introduce students (both in theoretical and practical terms) to methodological approaches to mass communication research in the fields of mass communications.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Define and describe the basics of scientific research.
2. Define and describe specificity of quantitative research methods.
3. Define and describe specificity of qualitative research methods.
4. Apply scientific research methods in the study of mass communication
5. Write a research design.
6. Analyze and interpret data collected by scientific research methods in field of mass communication

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

Communication Studies

Use different scientific and research methods of social sciences and independently conduct scientific research in the field of communication studies and write scientific papers in a clear and organized manner

Grading

In all the stages that the students go through as part of this course, their knowledge is tested successively and according to the level of their competence. In the first stage, their motivation for the course is tested as well as previous knowledge and any concerns and questions that they have are discussed with the professor and other students. In the second stage, the students choose a certain research subject in the field of media and didactics that they research and present to the other students with a Power Point presentation, encouraging discussion with the other students on the subject. In the third stage, the students' systematic knowledge of the course content is tested with the final exam on the obligatory literature.

Students are monitored for their active participation in the course, critical thinking, and making enquiries about some topics. Students show the level of comprehension of theoretical bases by carrying out a teaching unit and critically analysing the teaching of their colleagues. The adoption of necessary knowledge and skills is evaluated also through compiling written lesson plans and a part of the operational teaching plan. The knowledge acquired during this course is additionally evaluated and improved during the Practical Training in Subject Specific Teaching Methodology courses and the Correlation Practicum in the Methodology of Teaching.

General Competencies

Teaching methodology mediated on all three levels contributes to a complete education of future teachers in relation to the ability of organizing, carrying out and evaluating the teaching activity by enabling students to:

Describe theoretical postulates of subject specific teaching;
Distinguish between various didactic, pedagogical and psychological theories;
Compare different theories and postulates;
Indicate individual premises of the theory of teaching;

Course Description

The course objective is to acquaint students with teaching as a highly complex system of mediating knowledge and skills on three levels of teaching methodology: a) the level of teaching methodology that mediates the general theory of teaching, i.e. generally valid principles and procedures applied within various subjects and teaching situations as well as complex teacher-student teaching environment communication relationships; b) subject specific methodology as a narrower specification of teaching procedures characteristic for a specific field or fields (e.g. humanities, social sciences), c) subject specific methodology fully concentrated on specific content and objectives of individual subjects/courses and adequate teaching procedures.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Identify individual propositions of the theory of teaching
2. Describe relevant elements of planning the teaching process
3. Classify teaching forms, methods and aids
4. Demonstrate direct planning of lessons
5. Identify the ways of evaluating and marking students
6. Choose teaching methods, forms, and aids with the student, objectives and learning outcomes in mind
7. Differentiate the ways of organizing practice and repetition
8. Define positive classroom atmosphere, good class management, and productive ways of establishing classroom discipline

Multivariate Statistical Methods

215071

Lecturer

doc. dr. sc.
Dario Pavić

Course Description

The aim of the course is to acquire knowledge and skills to use the major multivariate statistical analysis of the results at the level of understanding, planning and implementation of research analysis. Students will be acquainted with all fundamental multivariate statistical knowledge and techniques which are being used in sociological practice with emphasis on the specifics, advantages and limitations of particular methods of multivariate data analysis, develop motivation to work in sociological research, as well as knowledge of basic statistical methods and techniques and the motivation for their use in social research. The basic idea of the multivariate statistical analysis to simultaneously observe several interrelated variables, wherein each variable initially, as important.

Students have been developing abstract way of thinking and adopting statistical terminology. Understanding of statistical analysis procedures, which are subject to lecturing, are being verified in written forms, through tests and numeric exercises. Students are expected to demonstrate clear and logically consistent interpretation of calculated results

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Estimate the statistical requirements for the implementation of selected multivariate techniques.
2. Design a plan of research using some of multivariate techniques.
3. Analyze data suitable for analysis of some of these multivariate analysis techniques using SPSS software package
4. Explain the results obtained by some of these multivariate techniques within the set of research problems
5. Evaluate conclusions by applying some of these multivariate techniques in research
6. Explain statistical and mathematical logic MANOVA, regression, correlation, discriminant, canonical and cluster analysis.

Course Description

The history of world literature, and to that extent also Croatian literature, is impregnated with dominant motifs or topos that we associate with pagan (Greek and Roman) literature, which also experienced its stylizations in Christian literature. After antiquity, these motifs experienced their literary and linguistic manifestations again in the works of famous European and Croatian Renaissance writers, so they can be linearly viewed and analyzed in order to show that such and similar motifs belong to the circle of typified allegorical narrative-descriptive patterns. The aim of the course will be to present several such motives in the work on the text and introduce interested students to this approach.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Analyze and appreciate the justification of different theoretical approaches to literature
2. Describe, identify and define common motifs in pagan and Christian literature
3. Analyze and critically form an attitude about adaptations of pagan and literary motifs
4. Define interpolations of pagan motifs in Croatian literature
5. Define the importance of motifs for the meaning of the text
6. Recognize the concept of linear motifs in text construction

Katarina Dadić

Course Description

This course aims to acquaint students with the socio-historical context of parenting (parenting in different social contexts and how the concept of parenting has changed) with special emphasis on the challenges of modern parenting (technology, globalization, media, etc.). The intention is to critically approach different socio-historical theoretical frameworks of the perception of parenthood. Furthermore, in this course students will be introduced to partnership with parents in education, more precisely, how to have a quality counseling conversation with parents and will have the opportunity to critically evaluate different approaches to parenting education programs. By emphasizing the importance of parenting education in modern society due to many challenges, students gain insight into their role in the parenting education process. They will develop an understanding of the role of parenting and recognize their role in providing support to parents within the educational institution (parent meetings and parent information).

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Define the concepts of parenting, upbringing, pedagogy, and parenting pedagogy.
2. State socio-historical changes in parenting.
3. Explain the role of teachers in parent education.
4. Explain the role of the media in parenting.
5. Describe the characteristics of a parent-school partnership.
6. Relate the importance of teacher-parent collaboration with parent education.
7. Analyze parent education programs.

Course Description

The aim of the course is to acquaint students with the current state of the media in transition from traditional to digital journalism and new forms of citizen participation in the production, distribution and distribution of media content. The aim is also to enable the adoption of a terminological and theoretical-analytical framework for understanding and recognizing forms of citizen participation in times of increased social cohesion, critical reflection on the meaning of information in the digital environment, its transparency and strengthening civic action to achieve deliberative democracy.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Demonstrate, classify and differentiate theoretical literature and professional terminology related to participatory journalism (public sphere, deliberative democracy, citizen journalism, etc.).
2. Recognize and interpret the field of public and civic communications, with an emphasis on the differences and links between professional and participatory journalism.
3. Analyze and judge different points of view in current discussions about the future of journalism.
4. Describe a number of mechanisms through which, throughout history, citizens have participated in the production of media content.
5. Recognize alternative understandings of the role of citizens and their relationship to information of public interest.
6. Analyze the changes in civic life that are manifested by the growth of social networks and the development of interactive Web 2.0
7. Compare different theoretical approaches and critiques of participatory journalism.

Forms of Teaching

» Predavanja

» Lectures are based on the student-oriented paradigm. This means that teaching will be based on a dialogue form of lectures. The seminar is based on modern forms of work, which activates students and encourages the development of their abilities and skills for educational activities. Students will write and present a seminar work (independently, in pairs or in groups). During semester students will write two continuous assessment exams. Following the semester's work (attendance and participation in all activities in lectures and seminars), each student will have three grades at the end of the semester that are summed up and divided by 3, with final grade as a result. If satisfied with the grade, student will be participate in a regular exam deadline, otherwise he or she will go to the oral exam. If the students have not completed the obligation to prepare and attend the seminar, they will lose the signature.

Philosophical methodology

201535

Lecturer

doc. dr. sc.
Matija Mato
Škerbić

Course Description

Philosophy as a specific discipline complements the scientific analysis of reality with the synthesis of knowledge. The philosophical methodology makes it possible to draw well-founded conclusions and recognize the most general patterns characteristic of reality.

Thus, the basic intentions of this course are threefold.

On the one hand, to acquaint male and female students with general philosophical methods and their peculiarities, to train them to conduct independent scientific research through the application of research methods and procedures, as well as understanding and critical evaluation of existing research.

On the other hand, to acquaint students with the general principles and methods of scientific work in the form of preparing a thesis: with ways of shaping the purpose of research, research questions, hypotheses and variables.

Finally, students will be able to create a research plan independently, with respect for the dignity of the person, adherence to ethical norms, good academic customs and principles of scientific and research integrity such as responsible data management, respect for copyright, the obligation of originality of scholarly works and engaged mentoring.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Recognize the key features of philosophical and non-philosophical methodology.
2. Distinguish different philosophical methods and successfully apply them in independent philosophical work
3. Evaluate the similarities and differences of the philosophical method from the methods of special sciences
4. Explain the significance, role and peculiarities of philosophy compared to the related fields of art, religion, culture and special sciences and disciplines
5. Compare and evaluate philosophical and scientific methodology in the educational process.
6. Apply knowledge of philosophical methodology in the teaching process

Course Description

The aim of this course is to introduce to myth as an indispensable phenomenon of human culture and one of the oldest forms of religious expression. The complexity of this phenomenon is evidenced by the fact that different sciences, as well as philosophy itself, often speak of completely different things when talking about it. Therefore, learning about different ways of understanding myth as a particular cultural phenomenon and interpreting it is an important subject of this course. Students want to become acquainted with the ways and methods of dealing with religion in a strictly philosophical way, as well as pointing out what the goal of philosophy of religion is, that is, an attempt to give a philosophical answer to the phenomenon of religion itself, to its function and the meaning attached to it in human life, as well as questions about the possibility of proof of God's existence.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Describe the basic labels of myth as a particular cultural phenomenon
2. Distinguish between different methods and approaches in the interpretation of myth
3. Explain the significance of the myth and its impact to this day
4. Distinguish between forms of cognitive approach to religion (philosophical and theological approaches)
5. Apply methods of strictly philosophical dealing with the phenomenon of religion

Political Sociology

227720

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Andreja Sršen

Course Description

To acquaint students with basic concepts of political sociology and to provide tools for sociological analysis of contemporary political phenomena. Since politics is part of social reality and includes both structural and everyday aspects of life, it should be approached comprehensively, taking into account the wide paradigmatic distribution (sometimes even mutual exclusivity) of the sociological tradition. In this sense, this course presents both classic and contemporary sociological insights into the political system, which includes theoretical concepts, but also empirical results about the phenomenon of politics in society. A special focus of this course is the political system and its appearance within the framework of Croatian society. The emergence of politics and political action in Croatian society will be considered in the local, national, European and global context.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Recognize the intertwining of politics and everyday life.
2. State basic sociological theories about politics and political action.
3. Describe sociological-theoretical approaches to the phenomenon of politics.
4. Explain the global, European, national and local social context of political action.
5. Apply theoretical knowledge to the analysis of the relationship between politics and Croatian society.
6. Analyze the social dimensions of the establishment of political preferences in the Republic of Croatia.
7. Relate different sociological theories in the analysis of the Croatian political context.
8. Interpret the results of political elections in the Republic of Croatia with regard to the socio-demographic and socio-economic characteristics of voters.

The students are expected to practically apply the knowledge obtained in the fields of Pedagogy, Didactics, and Teaching Methodology of Croatian language by actually teaching classes. The objective is that the students master basic teaching methods and forms, using thereby contemporary media, and be able to encourage (their future) students as much as possible to be cooperative by designing and implementing various creative workshops

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Write the operational teaching plan for a school year, sticking thereby to established didactic and methodological rules as well as to legal regulations.
2. Write a professional development plan.
3. Design written lesson plans
4. Plan in writing at least two lessons selected from an approved textbook
5. Design and teach at least two lessons selected from an approved textbook.
6. Design and hold a creative workshop on a selected topic.
7. Design a questionnaire for self-evaluation and evaluation of teachers.
8. Plan several forms of written exams

General Competencies

The programme level outcomes of implementing relevant knowledge obtained in theoretical courses through practical training are:

interpret content in the sense of transposing data from one form to another

apply knowledge, experience, and skills in new situations,

analyse information (specific elements, relations between elements),

evaluate with the help of quantitative and qualitative criteria ,

synthesize in the form of a personal report,

provide arguments for one's attitudes,

suggest new interpretations and even theories.

Week by Week Schedule

1. Because this is practical training, lectures boil down to a minimum and refer only to shorter theoretical explanations. The biggest emphasis is put on shorter instructions regarding the writing of seminar papers and on the comments and/or suggestions concerning taught lessons, workshops, and written tasks.

Practical application of theoretical bases learned in the Subject Specific Teaching Methodology course to the design of the operational teaching plan. Drawing up the plan according to the calendar for the coming school year, based on the National Curriculum Framework, Teaching plans for croatian language, and individual Exam catalogues for croatian language for elementary and secondary schools.

Pointing out the importance of permanent professional development of teachers through designing a Professional Development Plan and referring the students to the web sites of the Education and Teacher Training Agency, Ministry of science, education, and sports, and domestic and foreign pedagogical literature.

In accordance with the requirements of contemporary didactics and teaching methodology, where the importance of individual work is pointed out, the students will be required to design and organize a creative workshop on a selected topic. The learning outcomes determined by the National Curriculum Framework have to thereby be accomplished (the fields of social sciences and humanities).

The students' attention will be drawn to the importance of class teaching lessons as the form of work aimed at getting to know the students, their needs and problems, coming together with one's students, and a more complete educational work. The students are expected to draw up and present The Class-Teaching Plan.

The cooperation between families and school will be pointed out through one of its forms – the parent meeting. The stress will thereby be put on the need to put parents in the role of active participants, and not passive listeners. The students are required to design and plan one parent meeting.

Taking into consideration the importance of practicing in teaching and the State Graduation Exam, this course will demand of the students to compile several forms of written exams. The students will thereby be directed to consult the National curriculum framework, Teaching plans and textbooks for croatian language, and Exam questions catalogues.

The students will in this course be taught how to draw up a simple questionnaire for getting feedback on their teaching or testing the expectations, opinions, or attitudes of the students and/or parents.

2. Practical application of knowledge to the process of planning and teaching lessons with the aid of contemporary media, avoiding the exclusive use of the frontal teaching form and insisting on the formulation and realization of educational teaching objectives.

Practical Exercises in the Methodology of Teaching [Sociology] 144741

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Katarina Dadić

Course Description

The main objective of the course is to prepare students for working in secondary schools. The students are expected to practically apply the knowledge obtained in the fields of Pedagogy, Didactics, and Teaching Methodology of sociology by actually teaching classes. The objective is that the students master basic teaching methods and forms, using thereby contemporary media, and be able to encourage (their future) students as much as possible to be cooperative by designing and implementing various creative workshops

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Write the operational teaching plan for a school year, sticking thereby to established didactic and methodological rules as well as to legal regulations.
2. Write a professional development plan.
3. Design written lesson plans
4. Plan in writing at least two lessons selected from an approved textbook
5. Design and teach at least two lessons selected from an approved textbook.
6. Design and hold a creative workshop on a selected topic.
7. Design a questionnaire for self-evaluation and evaluation of teachers.
8. Plan several forms of written exams

General Competencies

The programme level outcomes of implementing relevant knowledge obtained in theoretical courses through practical training are:
interpret content in the sense of transposing data from one form to another

apply knowledge, experience, and skills in new situations,
analyse information (specific elements, relations between elements),
evaluate with the help of quantitative and qualitative criteria ,
synthesize in the form of a personal report,
provide arguments for one's attitudes,
suggest new interpretations and even theories.

Week by Week Schedule

1. Because this is practical training, lectures boil down to a minimum and refer only to shorter theoretical explanations. The biggest emphasis is put on shorter instructions regarding the writing of seminar papers and on the comments and/or suggestions concerning taught lessons, workshops, and written tasks.

Practical application of theoretical bases learned in the Subject Specific Teaching Methodology course to the design of the operational teaching plan. Drawing up the plan according to the calendar for the coming school year, based on the National Curriculum Framework, Teaching plans for sociology, and individual Exam catalogues for sociology for secondary schools. Pointing out the importance of permanent professional development of teachers through designing a Professional Development Plan and referring the students to the web sites of the Education and Teacher Training Agency, Ministry of science, education, and sports, and domestic and foreign pedagogical literature.

In accordance with the requirements of contemporary didactics and teaching methodology, where the importance of individual work is pointed out, the students will be required to design and organize a creative workshop on a selected topic. The learning outcomes determined by the National Curriculum Framework have to thereby be accomplished (the fields of social sciences and humanities).

The students' attention will be drawn to the importance of class teaching lessons as the form of work aimed at getting to know the students, their needs and problems, coming together with one's students, and a more complete educational work. The students are expected to draw up and present The Class-Teaching Plan.

The cooperation between families and school will be pointed out through one of its forms – the parent meeting. The stress will thereby be put on the need to put parents in the role of active participants, and not passive listeners. The students are required to design and plan one parent meeting.

Taking into consideration the importance of practicing in teaching and the State Graduation Exam, this course will demand of the students to compile several forms of written exams. The students will thereby be directed to consult the National curriculum framework, Teaching plans and textbooks for sociology, and Exam questions catalogues.

The students will in this course be taught how to draw up a simple questionnaire for getting feedback on their teaching or testing the expectations, opinions, or attitudes of the students and/or parents.

Preparation of prevention programs

214005

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Lovorka
Brajković

Course Description

Enable students to define and differentiate theoretical approaches to prevention in the local community.

Introduce students to the process of developing prevention programs, look at the role of the local community, and other factors that affect the negative development outcomes.

To show students the prevention programs that are applied in Croatia and the world and to explain the importance of cooperation between the educational, health and penological systems and the social welfare system.

Include quantitative and qualitative methodology used in measuring the effectiveness, evaluation, and evaluation of the justification of prevention programs.

Work on the design of the original prevention program, from the analysis of relevant literature, through the development of a logical matrix to the planning and evaluation of the implementation of the prevention program and critically analyze its sustainability.

Apply the acquired knowledge in the design of the original project proposal in the field of prevention through seminar papers in small groups.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Evaluate different theories, paradigms, and methodological approaches in psychology when planning assessment and interventions with individuals, groups, and organizations.
2. Critically evaluate professional and scientific literature in psychology and related disciplines and create new scientific knowledge about prevention science.
3. Select appropriate research methods and strategies for interventions in accordance with the characteristics of members of different social groups and cultures and the specifics of their environmental and social context.
4. Assess theoretical concepts and scientific knowledge in creating interventions and programs that will improve the living conditions and development of individuals, families, organizations, and communities.

Course Description

Diploma thesis is a complete, comprehensive and highly independent obligation the fulfillment of which marks the students' completion of their studies and in which the students must demonstrate their ability to analyze the posed problem or subject from the theoretical, practical and research perspective in the field or branch of science in which their studies are founded. The aim of this course is to allow the students to demonstrate their knowledge of the subject, the ability of independent research, use of literature and the application of scientific and professional methodology.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Collect, investigate and critically read scientific literature;
2. Choose a thesis topic;
3. Write the thesis syllabus;
4. Plan the course of scientific research within a well-defined frame;
5. Define research problems, hypotheses and methods which will be used in order to reach relevant results;

6. Write a thesis in the extent of approximately 9000-10000 words (50 to 60 standard pages of text).
7. Define basic rules of presenting thesis

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

Psychology

Create basic and/or applied psychological research and construct and metrically evaluate psychological measuring instruments

Critically judge multivariate statistical procedures with regard to their limitations and to the satisfaction of theoretical assumptions in concrete application situations

Evaluate different theories, paradigms and methodological approaches in psychology when planning assessment and interventions with individuals, groups and organizations

General Competencies

Apply, classify and distinguish between professional and scientific terminology in the area of research;

Identify, evaluate and use a variety of scientific-research methods in the field of social sciences or humanities, which are applied in the area of research;

Independently conduct scientific research in the area of research with the help of modern scientific-research methods and write scientific papers in a clear and organized manner;

Think in an interdisciplinary manner and respect various scientific methodologies and perspectives on specific issues and problems in the researched field of social sciences or humanities.

Write a thesis in the Croatian or one of the world's languages in accordance with the scientific and ethical postulates, and defend it before a three-member committee.

Psychosocial adaptation of Croatian war veterans in war and devastation 188789

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Lovorka
Brajković

Course Description

The course is designed to help students to get acquainted through experiential learning with the specificity of the Homeland War and its impact on the veterans' population, their families and the wider community. Experiential learning implies the practical elaboration of specific topics, and also discussions and critical review at the group level. Students will have an opportunity to explore the individual and social perspective and to learn about the possibilities, difficulties and challenges faced by veterans themselves, their families and experts in working with this population. We aim to contribute to a clearer picture of the sacrifice that Croatian war veterans and members of their families have submitted and which many of them still submit today, as well as to contribute by presenting social processes that could improve their present and future.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Identify and explain the consequences of traumatic experiences, with particular emphasis on war experiences
2. Describe the specificity of the veterans' population in Croatia, the war and postwar experiences that they had, and consequences for their daily life
3. Recognize the difference between scientific facts and myths about posttraumatic stress disorder
4. Argue the effectiveness of various forms of intervention in recovery from traumatic experiences and describe practice in Croatia
5. Describe the experience of spouses and children of Croatian veterans and factors that affecting family relationships
6. Analyze critically the relationship of media and wider society towards the veterans' population
7. Analyze critically and compare the results of Croatian and foreign research in the area of psychosocial adaptation of war veterans, and explain the intercultural similarities and differences
8. Identify the factors that contribute to posttraumatic growth of veterans and to higher quality of their lives in peacetime

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

ECTS Credits	3.0
English Level	L1
E-learning Level	L1
Study Hours	30

Grading

Students will be evaluated on the basis of a seminar work that is based on intervention proposal intended for one of the specific populations that is included in the course content (e.g., wives of war veterans, war veterans with 100% disability, war veterans which became entrepreneur). In the seminar, students should use at least three Croatian and three foreign references, focus on the content of the three lectures, and on basis of that and their own creativity, develop a proposal for an intervention that would improve the quality of life of one (sub)population. For students which are not psychologists, assignments will be redesigned in accordance to their main course (e.g., media presentation of war veterans, historical truth about Homeland war).

Public Relations Practicum

Lecturer

Ivana Jeleč,
pred.

Course Description

Public Relations Practicum was conceived as a course which through interactive work, individual and in groups, connects previously mastered theoretical and practical knowledge with the requirement of performing professional tasks in the future working environment. The Practicum covers various writing skills, strategic planning, organisation, practical approach to the issues of PR and simulations of real situations from the (future) working environment. The course expects active participation because it includes an introduction in which the students will be given advice on the subject and a practical part in which the students will be required to carry out exercises and simulations.

The course includes a final assignment / project on the topic chosen by individual students, and based on the provided instructions. The assignment can be of any form and content which fall under the practical application of public relations.

The final assignment serves as the basis of the final grade and periodical tasks are also taken into consideration for this purpose.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Evaluate the actual situation in which the organization-client is situated
2. Identify and categorize the organization's public and then choose the key public
3. Apply research methods in analysis of the organization and key public
4. Create goals and objectives of a strategic communication plan
5. Create strategy and design appropriate tactics for the communication plan
6. Plan a timeline for tactics and make a communication plan budget
7. Create a written communication plan and then present and defend it
8. Apply the ethical principles of profession in creating a strategic communication plan

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

ECTS Credits	5.0

Lecturer

doc. dr. sc.
Dario Pavić

Course Description

The main goal of the course is to provide a review of all the phases of scientific research - from conceptualization through the operationalization to realization of the research field.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Use the quantitative methodology in the social research
2. Describe the advantages and disadvantages of the kvantitative methodology
3. Explain the relationship between the theoretical and empirical background of the social research
4. Explain the quantitative methodology in all the phases of the research
5. Describe the quantitative methodology as a unavoidable tool for understanding the social world

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

Dual-major studies

Sociology

- Analyze the social effects of certain globalization processes
- Implement an appropriate method to research social phenomena
- Create a project proposal
- Describe demographic processes
- Apply qualitative and quantitative data processing programs
- Interpret certain social processes using knowledge of sociological theories
- Compare different theoretical traditions in sociology

Course Description

There are two basic aims of course. First aim of the course is to introduce students to the basic quantitative methods used in scientific research of media and communications through theoretical lectures and deepen the acquired theoretical knowledge about the methods of the seminar.

Second aim of the course is to prepare students for conducting research by quantitative methods (questionnaire, content analysis) and familiarize them with basic procedures of data processing in SPSS.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Define and describe all types of quantitative research methods

Course Description

Introduce students to methods of regionalization and the role population plays in their creation.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Explain criteria and methods of regionalization
2. Explain the role of population in spatial relations and processes relevant for establishing various types of regionalisation
3. Explain functioning of city regions
4. Explain a central role of of settlements and to explain the role of central settlements of different hierarchical order in demographic and total development of local regions
5. Explain nodal-functional regionalization of space

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

Demography and Croatian Diaspora

Demonstrate the ability for scientific conceptualization of the topic and write and present scientific papers.

Use statistical, quantitative, graphic and geographic software packages

Understand the relationship between population movements and economic, social and geographical laws, as well as emigrant potential and the overall development of Croatia

Develop the ability to terminologically understand demographic and immigrant terms in students

Course Description

The course aims to explain the methodology of research and policy creation of the spatial aspect of economic and social development in interaction with demographic development. Within the scope of the course, students will become familiar with effective models and criteria, which are used for forming political-territorial entities as carriers of development in space.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Explain the relationship between population movements and economic, social and geographic processes
2. Analyze data and literature relevant to a specific research question
3. Compare different methods used in demographic research related to regional development
4. Define specific factors of regional growth and development
5. Explain the dynamics of demographic processes and structures that are key to the harmonious and balanced development of the region
6. Describe the assumptions and factors of overall development

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

Demography and Croatian Diaspora

Understand the relationship between population movements and economic, social and geographical laws, as well as emigrant potential and the overall development of Croatia

Develop the ability to demonstrate the need of the population and emigration in the service of social and political decision-making

Course Description

Understanding of the theoretical basis of the regression analysis; analysing and evaluating research papers in which the method was applied; creating research designs where regression analysis should be used as an adequate method of analysing the collected data; independent practical application of regression analysis in psychological research using the SPSS software package

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Explain and use the statistical and mathematical logic of regression models.
2. Evaluate and assess the statistical requirements for the implementation of regression models
3. Create a research design suitable for processing by regression analysis and logistic regression
4. Analyze data using regression models using the software package SPSS
5. Interpret the results obtained by regression analysis or logistic regression within the set of research problems
6. Explain statistical parameters obtained by regression models
7. Describe the role and logic of the general linear models in ANOVA designs
8. Evaluate the quality of regression models and results in applied research

Course Description

The aim of the course is to familiarize students with the basic information and historical processes that took place on Croatian territory in the Modern ages, introduce them to the basic problems of the study of modern Croatian history, and prepare them for independent work on the interpretation of Early Modern sources.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Define the basic problems of interpretation of sources
2. Identify the most important types and collections of sources
3. Explain the cause-and-effect relationships in the interpretation of sources
4. Assess historical processes during the period based on sources
5. Differentiate level of interpretation of the level of historical events in (early) modern history

Grading

Attending course 10%;
Analysis of the sources
40%; Oral exam 50%.

Course Description

The aim of the course is to familiarize students with types of sources, tools and methods of researching medieval history and working on sources to develop skills and competencies necessary for independent research. Attention will primarily be on different types of written sources (public and private documents, notary, city and chapter registers and protocols, legal normative documents, narrative sources), but the importance of the material culture (objects of everyday use, architecture, art works) will also be pointed out. Analysis of certain documents will be carried out in order to deepen the practical application of knowledge in traditional auxiliary historical sciences and to develop practical skills required in working with sources. Special attention will be paid to the content analysis of selected sources in order to indicate a wide range of possible research topics.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Define main problems in approaching medieval sources
2. Describe main stages in development of public and private notary and chapter protocols
3. Explain the function of narrative sources in the middle ages
4. Identify published source collections relevant to the study of medieval Croatia
5. Name the most important archives and archival collections in Croatia and abroad relevant to research of Croatian medieval history
6. Use topographical manuals in resolving toponyms in sources
7. Analyze main parts of a document

Study Programme Learning Outcomes

General Competencies

After successfully graduating student will be able to: identify the most important person and institutions in the Croatian and the World history, compile a list of literature for each historical period,
 tell what is the interpretation of history,
 distinguish difference between important and non-important facts within historiographic interpretation, interpret a historical sources,

Roman Military in Croatia

202914

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Vlatka Vukelić

Course Description

Topics related to the Roman conquest and colonization of our territories, the movement of legions along our soil, the residence of legionary troops and august cohorts, as well as the sites where legionary camps were proven to be addressed.

It would also address the impact of individuals in the military system itself, as well as their recruitment and retirement after military service, and their impact on civilian social as well as political structures. Through this structure, we would draw conclusions about the Roman army on the global historical scene, as well as the importance of our spaces for the overall territory of the Roman Empire.

Undergraduate level studies, as well as a higher level of knowledge of ancient history, are required to take the course. I suggest teaching in the form of seminars with a tendency to form the course into a working group in some new history study program.

This course also "suffers" a lot of potential guest lecturers from fellow scientists who specialize in specific legions that have resided on Croatian soil.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Describe the process of Roman expansion into the Croatian historical space
2. Describe the consequences Roman military expansion: romanization indigenous communities
3. Describe the structure of the military administration and its implementation on the Croatian historical space
4. Describe archeological remains from the area of Roman legionary camps (Tilurius and Burnumus)
5. Describe and categorize the armament of a Roman soldier and the establishment of a Roman legion within a Roman camp
6. Evaluate the symbolic importance of the triumph celebration and compare that event with the events of contemporary history

Tomislav
Janović

ECTS Credits	3.0
English Level	L0
E-learning Level	L1
Study Hours	15
	15

Course Description

In the introductory part of the course some standard examples of self-deception, both among animals and humans, will be considered in order to point out the paradoxical character of the phenomenon and to show why the attempts at finding a universally applicable definition thereof have failed. A special emphasis will be given to the puzzling question whether self-deception is necessarily an intentional activity. In the following, the same set of examples will be used to elucidate the logical structure of self-deception and to look into its causal mechanisms on various levels (evolutionary, psychological, neuro-physiological). In the third part of the course, some forms of collective self-deception will be discussed, together with its moral and social implications. In the concluding part of the course, the possibility of counteracting self-deception will be considered.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Identify and classify cases of self-deception
2. Explicate the common logical structure of cases of self-deception
3. Form hypotheses concerning the causal mechanisms of self-deception
4. Appraise the moral and social implications of self-deception
5. Apply recent scientific findings to their understanding of mental and social phenomena
6. Improve their general skills of analytic thinking and writing

Sociology of the Croatian Diaspora

205183

Lecturer

Marina Perić
Kaselj,
nasl. izv. prof.
dr. sc.

Course Description

The aim is to acquaint students with the social processes that contribute to the migration of the Croatian population, through an overview of the sociological approach to the phenomenon of migration, with focus on a multidisciplinary approach to the study of problems, and by comparing existing scientific, research and theoretical material with special reference to the research on the Croatian diaspora. We focus our attention on explaining contemporary social processes: integration, adaptation, assimilation, remigration, as well as issues of defining identity, re/constitution of the identity of Croatian diasporic communities in the world, showing the specifics of their development with regard to the causes of emigration, their position, relationships and connections with their society of origin, admissions, expatriate, generational similarities/differences, group cohesion, dynamics and interactions in cultural, economic or political organisations, the return of expatriates or arrival of descendants to an "imagined" homeland. The aim is to demonstrate how the development of new communication tools/the Internet also changes the attitudes of the Croatian diaspora towards their society of origin, leading to the emergence and development of Croatian virtual diasporic communities and a diaspora cyber culture, as well as increasingly intense transnational practices.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Develop an understanding of basic terms relating to migration and migration concepts
2. Demonstrate acquired knowledge of migration and post-migration processes through theoretical approaches and a key study
3. Demonstrate theoretical and conceptual knowledge of migration and migration processes to the Croatian diaspora
4. Criticize, define and distinguish between the character and type of Croatian Diaspora communities.
5. Analyze (conceptual-theoretical) the Croatian diaspora-Croatian migrants/emigrants/minority, Croatian emigrant/minority/ethnic/indigenous communities, Croatian migrant virtual communities
6. Identify the Croatian Diaspora by age, gender, causes/time of emigration, space of emigration/immigration.

7. Analyze the identity of the Croatian Diaspora with respect to the socio-historical context and identity diversity / hybridity (local, regional, ethnic, national).
8. Explain the social processes of the Croatian diaspora as a consequence of migration (integration, adaptation, assimilation).

Teaching Competencies in Modern Curriculum

201448

Course Description

Objective/competences:

Generally define school, teaching, teacher and student from the point of view of contemporary pedagogy. Generally determine the art of teaching. Analyse basic tenets of the theory of teaching. Analyse the models of the relationship between theory and practice in pedagogy and didactics and develop basic teaching skills or professional teacher's competences, which among other things include attitude and tact in communication with students. Acquire the models of class-teaching atmosphere development as well as class cohesiveness in the context of interculturalism. Acquire teacher's competences in the field of curriculum development methodology.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Develop pedagogical competences necessary to every teacher for work in the educational process in contemporary school
2. Identify competences of critical analysis of the teaching process in primary and elementary school
3. Explain key concepts related to the field
4. Identify theories and practice in contemporary curriculum
5. Identify different theoretical positions and criteria relevant when developing theoretical models
6. Design theoretical models with a critical attitude
7. Identify teacher competences in the field of curriculum development methodology.
8. Develop the pedagogical perspective when understanding and explaining pedagogical practice

Grading

Students will be monitored in all three stages of the course delivery. In the first stage, when the basic concepts of pedagogy are taught, the student's motivation is monitored based on active engagement in class, as well as regular attendance (20% of the final grade). In the second stage, the student's individual and group work in research on a specific pedagogical problem, multimedia presentation and reporting on it in front of colleagues, and participating in the same assignment of other students are monitored (30 % of the final grade). The third stage refers to the evaluation of the student's systematic knowledge of pedagogy by means of a written exam (15 questions) based on obligatory literature and professor's lectures (50% of the final grade).

General Competencies

On the level of the programme, the course makes the student capable of:

Correctly interpreting basic concepts: teacher, competences, pedagogical competences
 Analysing pedagogical competences that every teacher needs to be able to work in school
 Defining curriculum and what it should be according to the theories of curriculum
 Understanding similarities and differences between didactics and curriculum
 Developing a curriculum.

Teaching Grammar in Teaching Croatian Language 234436

Lecturer

izv. prof. dr. sc.
Davor Piskač

Course Description

Introducing students to methods of using and adapting Croatian school grammar in primary and secondary school lessons (phonology, morphology, and syntax), as well as creating assignments and evaluating students in order to help students:

Learn how to prepare, conduct, and evaluate a lesson based on Croatian school grammar.

Make the necessary adjustments and simplifications to adapt the material to the level of easier grammar comprehension for elementary and high school students.

Problematically distribute grammar elements according to the order of learning.

This would prepare students for teaching the Croatian language subject in primary and secondary schools with the aim of methodically deepening their existing knowledge of the Croatian language acquired during their Croatian Studies program. Additionally, students would be prepared for independent work with the school grammar of the Croatian language and guided in the methodology of selecting texts for grammar learning and practice.

Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Explain and apply the norm of the Croatian standard language and recognize deviations.
2. Apply pedagogical-psychological-didactic-methodical competences.
3. Define knowledge about Croatian culture, identity, language and literature in primary and secondary education
4. Apply professional pedagogical competences and different methodological systems for independent teaching.
